Grand Canyon University - Today, more than ever, a college education can give you an enormous advantage in both a military and civilian career. GCU is regionally accredited and emphasizes individual attention for both traditional undergraduate students and the working professional in six colleges: the Ken Blanchard College of Business, the College of Education, the College of Nursing, the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Fine Arts and Production, and the College of Doctoral Studies. GCU offers campus-based programs and online bachelors, masters and doctoral degree programs. Military Program - Unfortunately, the rigorous demands of the military lifestyle, including long hours, irregular schedules and frequent relocation, can make earning your degree difficult. For this reason, GCU has developed a program specifically to meet the needs of military professionals, DOD personnel and their families. In recognition of our outstanding support for military students, Grand Canyon University was recently named one of the top Military Friendly Schools by GI Jobs Magazine. Career Opportunities at GCU are as diverse and interesting as our campus-based and online classes. We know it takes a team of dedicated employees, cutting edge technology, and rigorous academic programs to give our students an education that prepares them to lead and serve. If you're ready for an outstanding career opportunity working with a community of inspired individuals, we invite you to come and explore what GCU has to offer. Higher Education Opportunities - GCU offers online Bachelors, Masters and Doctoral degree programs as well as traditional campus-based programs. Visit: <http://www.hr.gcu.edu/> or <http://www.gcu.edu>.
